FIXING THE PRICE OF GOLD BY LAW.

The money value or price of gold is absolutely fixed by law. In the coinage system of the United States 23.22 grains of standard gold, or 23.22 grains pure are worth $1; for the all-sufficient reason that the law requires just that weight of gold to be put into the dollar. In other words, the gold dollar weighs 25.8 grains. So by the English coinage laws an ounce of pure gold will be coined into 35.473 104 d of English money. That amount is the mint rate, but when gold is deposited at the mint for coinage there is always some delay in getting returns. Prior to 1844 that delay averaged about sixty days. Therefore the owners of bullion desirous of having their money at once would sell it to the brokers for something less than the mint rate—usually for about 23 1/2 d an ounce. Accordingly, in that year parliament enacted that the Bank of England should take all bullion offered at its counters and pay for it at the rate of 23 1/2 d an ounce, the difference of 1 1/2 pence between the bank rate and the mint rate being intended to partially or wholly reimburse the bank for the delay. That has been substantially the price of gold bullion ever since. The act of parliament at once raised the price of gold in relation to 3 pence an ounce. A favorite argument with the gold people is that the value of gold is wholly independent of coinage. And yet we see that a simple delay of sixty days in the coinage made a difference of 4 1/2 pence an ounce in the value of gold bullion. If the delay had been longer the difference would have been greater. If it could not have been coined at all either in England or elsewhere, we leave some gold worshipers to figure out how much it would have been worth. In France the law provides for the coinage of gold at the rate of 3,100 francs to the kilogramme. The kilogramme is something over 2.2—more exactly .226858135 lb. We are not aware of any law in France similar to the English provision of 1844. In that country the mint rate fixes the price, subject to any small difference that may result from delay in the coinage, as was formerly the case in England. But this difference must be very slight because the gold can be realized upon immediately at the Bank of England. The reader will, of course, understand that it is money value alone that is here spoken of. An ounce of gold is worth just as many "dollars" as it will make. But how much those "dollars" will buy (or exchange for) of something else depends upon their number, compared with the quantity of that something else. The exchange value of gold is constantly varying, the same as the exchange value of other things. If all gold coins were to be doubled in weight there would only be half as many of them, and each one would buy twice as much of other things as it does now, but it would take twice as much gold bullion to buy a gold dollar.

"WAGES ARE GOING UP."

"Wages are going up," they tell us when we complain of the Republican trust-making policy. Let us see how the trust can afford to increase wages and how they do not in fact benefit labor. A trust is composed, let us say, of twenty concerns. They each employ 250 hands, earning $500 a year, on the average, and 25 more expensive help or traveling salesmen, averaging $2,000 a year. The aggregate is 5,000 hands, earning $2,500,000, and 500 office men, earning $1,000,000; grand total of the pay rolls, $3,500,000. If, on completing the combine, it is determined to reduce the force of hands one-fourth—often it is more—it cuts the remaining pay roll down to $1,875,000. Only one in ten, say, of the office and traveling force is retained, the roll of the remaining fifty amounting to $190,000. Total of the remaining pay rolls, $1,975,000. How much, then, has the trust saved by the combine? Why, the difference between the former pay roll and the remaining—$1,510,000. "Wages are going up," says the trust, and it does so—a paltry 10 per cent. This will require $197,500, and this can be paid out of what has been saved. The combine on wages alone, and have $1,577,500 remaining. Not only has an army of unemployed been turned loose, but the price of the product has been raised, as is the case of barbed wire, from $1.75 to $3 per hundred within a year! Down with the trust! You can have a school of this in your own family, if desired. Write to the editor of the Rocky Mountain Tea. Ask Your Druggist.

SECRETARY OF WAR.

R. A. Alger Resigns and Elihu Root is Appointed his Successor.

The resignation of Secretary of War Alger was made public Friday. For months this step had been demanded by the public and he was given to understand by the President that a change in the war portfolio would be acceptable to the administration. While Alger was merely accused of mismanaging the people's blood and through his incompetency, he was persona gratia to the administration, but when he was convicted of the more heinous offense of alienating their votes, his fate was sealed. With the characteristic disregard of the administration for everything except political expediency, he was dropped. He was given hint after hint that his absence was desired from the cabinet table, but, relying on the friendship of the President, he ignored them. In fact, he canvassed the situation very thoroughly, and was assured that he could exercise his own pleasure, which as he announced, was to remain in the Cabinet until the end of the month. The following is Secretary Alger's letter of resignation and the President's reply to it:

July 19, 1899.

Sir—I beg to tender to you my resignation of the office of Secretary of War, to take effect at such time in the near future as you may decide the affairs of this department will permit. In terminating my official connection with your administration I wish for you continuous health and the highest measure of success in carrying out the great work entrusted to you. I beg the honor to be very respectfully, your obedient servant,

R. A. ALGER

The President replied:

Executive Mansion, Washington,
July 20, 1899.

Hon. R. A. Alger, Secretary of War:

Dear Sir—Your resignation of the office of Secretary of War, under date of July 19, is accepted, to take effect the first of August, 1899. In thus severing the official relation which has continued for more than two years, I desire to thank you for the faithful service you have rendered the country at a most exacting period, and to wish you a long and happy life. With assurances of high regard and esteem I am yours sincerely,

WILLIAM McKINLEY.

Hon. Elihu Root, a prominent member of New York bar was tendered by President McKinley the war portfolio, which he accepted. It is not expected that the acceptance will make any change in the plans of Secretary Alger, and he will remain on duty until the end of the present month, being assisted by Mr. McKim.

Contrary to the prognostications of the Republicans and bolters, the meeting of the national Democratic committee in Chicago July 20 was a love feast and resulted in a thorough reconciliation and reunion of the members of that party, and the removal of all differences that may have heretofore existed among them, including even those between Altgeld and Harrison, Tammany and anti-Tammany, Goebel and anti-Goebel, and the goldites and silverites, and all, too, upon a bold, open and square told Democratic basis and an expressed declaration in favor of Bryan and the Chicago platform. The injurious effects of the McKinley reign have been so disastrous to the vast majority of the people of the country, that all patriotic Democrats realize the urgent necessity of preventing its continuance, and to effect that object have determined to come together and agree to follow Mr. Cleveland's wise precept, but not his example to abide by the decision of their national convention.—Alexandria Gazette.

CONSUMPTION

never stops because the weather is warm.

Then why stop taking
SCOTT'S EMULSION
simply because it's summer?

Keep taking it. It will heal your lungs, and make them strong for another winter.

The protectionists of this country, attribute the low price of wheat, corn, and cotton to over production, and the consequent glutting of the home market, but all the same, they strenuously oppose any reduction of the tariff by which the export of American products could be increased, and the glut in the home market be removed; and when foreign countries in need of such products, in order to get them, offer to reduce their duties on American imports twenty per cent., as France has recently done, their offers are rejected. Northern manufacturers will have their profits increased, though the farmers sell their crops for comparatively nothing.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.

Examinations will be held at the public school building in Lexington as follows:

For white teachers—Tuesday, August 1st and Wednesday, August 2nd.

For colored teachers—Thursday, August 3rd and Friday, August 4th, at the colored school building.

Candidates for teacher's certificates should attend promptly at 9 o'clock A. M., on the first day of the examination. Those who expect to stand the examination this year are advised to read Brannon's Revised Edition of Page's Theory and Practice of Teaching. After this year all candidates for teacher's certificates will be examined on Civil Government. Teachers will not be required to stand on this branch this year but extra credit will be given those that make as much as the required standard this year on this subject. Those holding first grade certificates that expire this year can have them renewed by entering at once upon a progressive professional course of study outlined by the State Superintendent of Schools—see June number of the Virginia School Journal.

The president of the State Female Normal School will send to me examination papers for entrance to his school, to be held at the same time as the examination for white teachers.

TIMBER RIDGE.

July 25th, 1899.

It is made thus strange how our view of things changes according to circumstances. Several times during last winter I almost wished that I could get my stand with my foot on each side of an imaginary line, encircling our world where it is always low, and feel as if I could see the world from the North Pole, and see the position of our world on the globe as it is now.

The drought through which we are passing is becoming quite a serious thing. Less showers passed in sight of us yesterday afternoon but none reached this locality. Our gardens and corn will soon, if this continues, be past redemption, and pasture fields as brown as in mid-winter. With a wheat crop followed by a short corn crop, there comes more hard times for a certain class of our people who are always spoken of as the most independent of all. There are farmers known to me who, after taking off their seed sown, will have wheat enough left to pay their fertilizer bills, and such cases are not a few. Some, however, have met with better success, but few will have a surplus after they have all expenses paid.

Threshing is now the order of the day and threshing-engines are being moved from place to place over our public roads without the least notice being taken of the law requiring a man to be kept in front to warn the travel of their approach.

Well, "Beet Alger" had to step down and out at last and that under fire, notwithstanding his positive assertion that he would not. Poor fellow, it is said that he never could stand fire. He must now go into political oblivion, hearing more reproach than often attaches to the name of any man. Embellished beef, Montgomery, Chickamauga, Miami and Camp Alger are words that must haunt him to the grave, even though he could lose sight of the starvation, sickness and death among our soldiers in Cuba, for which he was largely responsible. Then, how about the man who kept him so long in such a responsible position and was, all the time, fully cognizant of the facts in the case, not only from personal knowledge of passing events, but from daily representations at the hands of those he knew and trusted? But as McKinley has gone to the "Root" of the matter, we may expect better things. W.

A GOOD YIELD.

Capt. W. F. Pierson has just threshed a twenty-acre field of wheat which yielded twenty-three bushels of wheat to the acre.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

It melts these flakes of dandruff in the scalp. It goes further than this: it prevents their formation. It has still other properties: it will restore color to gray hair in just ten times out of every ten cases.

And it does even more: it feeds and nourishes the roots of the hair. Thin hair becomes thick hair; and short hair becomes long hair.

We have a book on the Hair and Scalp. It is yours, free, on asking.

If you are not in all the places you expect to find it, write the druggist nearest you, and he will send you a copy free. Address: DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass.

MR. E. H. BARCLAY FOR THE LEGISLATURE.

Editor County News:

Believing that the time has come when we should send a man to represent us in the next Legislature who is a Democrat, and who has proved his faith by his works, and who is in hearty sympathy with his party, and who is not elected and elected without fear, favor or partiality work, and vote in the Legislature for the best interests of the masses of the people and not in the interest of a favored few; we believe we have found a man who will fill the bill, a man who has never failed to support his party or his nominees both with pen and voice for the past thirty years, a man as true in peace to his native State as he was in war, his empty sleeve is a mute testimonial of his gallantry on the field of battle. Let us now show our appreciation of a brave and gallant soldier and a Democratic member in the Legislature, that man is E. H. Barclay, the editor of that sterling Democratic paper, the Lexington Gazette, and we call upon him to announce himself a candidate for the House of Delegates for this county.

MANY VOTERS.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Replying to the above call made upon me in the Rockbridge County News, I respectfully announce myself a candidate to represent this county as one of her delegates in the next Legislature, and solicit the support of my constituents in the primaries and county convention when held. If nominated and elected I pledge myself to use my best endeavors to serve my people to the best of my ability. But should the delegates assembled in convention, think the best interests of the county best served by some other man, I will cheerfully acquiesce, and do all in my power to elect the nominee.

Respectfully,
E. H. BARCLAY.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES.

I, the undersigned, one of many citizens of Rockbridge County, do hereby respectfully announce myself a candidate for the House of Delegates of Virginia. I submit my claims to a Democratic county convention, and if elected to a nomination I will take my place in the ranks and work cheerfully for the best interests of the county. I will not employ my friends by persistent solicitation after I have in any questionable method to secure the nomination, but simply submit my candidacy to the Democrats of the county for endorsement, a large proportion of whom I know personally.

Respectfully,
J. SCOTT MOORE.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

At the urgent solicitation of many of the citizens of different sections of the county I am constrained to announce myself a candidate for re-election to the House of Delegates of Virginia. Having served the people of Rockbridge county, and also the Legislature, I refer to my past record simply as a pledge of future faithfulness, earnestness and ability. I submit my claims to the nominating convention of the Democratic party.

Yours respectfully,
J. S. CRAIG.

SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN.

The campaign for the United States Senatorship between Hon. Thomas S. Martin and Governor Tyler was practically opened Monday when Hon. William A. Jones and Mr. Clem. Groumet at Halifax Courthouse in joint debate. The former represented Tyler and the latter Martin, and in dealing with the records of the two candidates the speakers were quite personal.

If the speeches are an earnest of what is to come, the campaign will be one of the warmest ever known in Virginia.

COLONEL INGERSOLL DEAD.

Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll, the famous lawyer and agnostic lecturer, died suddenly at his summer home in Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., on Friday last, of heart disease, from which he had suffered for several years. He was in his sixty-sixth year.

The news of his death will not prompt the mourning that might have been had his life-work been other than it was. Had his talents been employed in harmony with public sentiment the nation would mourn his passing, but, as it is, grief will be limited.

That this is so is not strange. Admire the man and his eloquence, his word painting and his lofty moral thoughts as we may, we cannot separate ourselves from the realization that he was the embodiment of a principle antagonistic to all modern sentiment. He attacked a principle that has fostered the growth, development, civilization and enlightenment of the world. He sought its destruction and offered nothing in its place. He assailed the deep-seated religious tendency of the world with ridicule and invective, and offered no compensation for the idols he sought to shatter.

Among the personal property of the late ex-Governor Holliday, which he prized highly, has been found a pair of fine riding boots which belonged to Thomas, Lord Fairfax of Greenway, who owned the entire Shenandoah Valley, and who was the founder of Winchester. The boots have been in the possession of the Holliday family since they were given by will to Dr. Mackey Gov., Holliday's grandfather. Just prior to his death Gov. Holliday asked that they be presented to the Virginia Historical Society at Richmond, which will be done.

ROBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters,' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement, I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well having finished her new story, and the first installment is published in the August Ladies' Home Journal. It is in her characteristic humorous vein, but may be said to be a story with a purpose. It bears the name of 'My Stylish Cousin's Daughter.'

JOSHUA ALLEN'S WIFE'S NEW STORY.

A serious, and what will probably prove a fatal shooting, occurred Sunday afternoon near Central Baptist Church, Amherst county, Saturday afternoon, where a protracted meeting was in progress.

During the interim between the morning and afternoon services, while dinner was being enjoyed in the grove surrounding the church, London Parr learned that Howard Sazdige and Miss Carrie Bowles had gone driving. He immediately mounted a horse, and, overtaking the couple within a half mile of the church, fired three shots from his thirty-eight-caliber Smith & Wesson revolver at Sazdige. Two of the shots struck his victim in the back.

Parr then returned to the church, accompanied by Miss Bowles, where, mounting a horse, he rode away in a sweeping gallop. He was afterward arrested, and by order of the county judge was taken to Lynchburg for safe keeping.

AT ROCKBRIDGE COUNTY COURT
JULY 3RD, 1899.

A settlement of accounts of J. P. Moore Executor of Mrs. Susan G. Gold deceased, having been made by W. S. Hopkins Comr. of Accounts of this Court, and filed in the Clerk's Office thereof, for exceptions, on the 1st day of July, 1899, and it appearing that more than one year has elapsed since the qualification of said Executor, on the motion of the legatees of the said Mrs. Susan G. Gold deceased, it is ordered that all creditors of the said Susan G. Gold deceased do appear before this Court on the 7th day of August, 1899, and show cause if any they can against the payment and delivery of the estate of said deceased to her legatees, in accordance with the distribution made in the aforesaid settlement; and when a good cause is not shown, this Court will on that day order and direct the said Executor to pay and deliver to the said legatees the money now in his hands for distribution among them as shown by said settlement, without refunding bonds being executed by them, therefore.

And it is further ordered, that the Clerk of this Court cause a copy of this order to be published for four successive weeks in the Lexington Gazette, a newspaper published in the town of Lexington, Virginia, and post a copy thereof at the front door of the Court House of said County, on the first day of two successive terms of this Court.
